Universities lose millions for building maintenance

Big repairs. Money for basic maintenance
trimmed in budget

RYAN
ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

With hundreds of millions of dollars in backlogs, Edmonton's post-secondary institutions will have less money this year to repair aging buildings.

Post-secondary institutions suffered cuts to their operating funding during the last budget, but they also saw cuts to the infrastructure maintenance program, which helps pay for basic maintenance of things such as roofs and heating systems.

The University of Alberta grant went from $22 million to $17.4 million, as the school wrestles with a $685-million deferred-maintenance backlog. NAIT's grant was reduced to $2.8 million from $4.8 million, as the school deals with $60 million in backlogged maintenance projects.

At the University of Alberta, where nearly half of the school's 500 buildings are more than 40 years old, delays on maintenance projects are expected.

"Essentially it will mean that we will have to delay some projects that are scheduled for maintenance and renewal," spokesperson Bryan Alary said.

With a $685-million backlog in maintenance work, the University of Alberta and other schools in the province lost millions in infrastructure dollars in the provincial budget. RYAN TUMILTY/METRO

While the school doesn't yet know what projects might not go ahead, officials are looking at different ways to fund some of the repairs, Alary said.

"It's premature to say specifically what project would be affected. We are reviewing the impacts of this and looking at possible alternative funding sources," he said.

NAIT spokesperson Frank Landry said the cut in funding will force the school to re-evaluate priorities.

"The most important projects, whatever is at the top of the list, will continue to get done and the reduction means projects not deemed priorities or essential at this point will be delayed."

Landry said the school focuses on health and safety issues and then looks at infrastructure improvements that will protect buildings over the long term.

"There is a scale of things and some of the stuff at the bottom will just get pushed over to a later date," he said.

In an emailed statement, the government said the cuts to infrastructure maintenance came as a result of the harsh fiscal realities facing the province.

It also said the cuts were done on an institution-by-institution basis concentrating on the schools that least needed the money.

"Institutions in relatively good condition saw their IMP grant reduced more than others," the statement says.

Students plan mass rally

Principals across the Edmonton Public School district are warning high school students they will be marked absent if they participate in a rally scheduled for the Alberta legislature this week.

Hundreds of students are expected to leave class at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, walk out the front doors of their schools, and get on buses booked by student organizers and paid for by the Alberta Federation of Labour. The AFL couldn't be reached for comment, but its online event schedule shows participation in the protest.

The buses will take the high school students to the legislature, where they will have a "mass high school party" while protesting cuts by the Alberta government to education from kindergarten to Grade 12.

"We decided and we realized that students need to make their own voice known," said co-organizer Hayden Weir, a Grade 12 student at Jasper Place High School.

Weir said he decided to organize the event with friend Samantha Kennedy after lamenting budget reductions that have resulted in cuts to programs and extracurricular activities.

Weir estimated more than two dozen buses will be sent to public and Catholic high schools to ferry students to the rally.

Edmonton Public School Board spokesperson Jane Sterling said the district has asked principals to post information on their school-zone sites, stating the event is not being organized or endorsed by the district.

After a week in the spotlight, the former Tory MP moves to the press box for the Edmonton Prospects

RYAN TUMILTY

While he vaulted into the national spotlight last week for calling foul on the Conservative government, on Sunday he was making that call on the baselines in Edmonton.

Edmonton MP Brent Rath-

Future uncertain

Brent Rathgeber was elected in 2008 and 2011. He said he hasn't yet decided if he will run again in 2015.

geber, who made headlines when he quit the Conservative caucus, spent the weekend at his new gig calling the Edmonton Prospects play-by-play.

He said the job is a nice change of pace from life in Ottawa for a lifelong baseball fan.

The assignment is a volunteer position and his commentating goes out over Internet radio, allowing mostly players' families to keep up on the Prospects.

"I get paid a hotdog during the seventh inning, which I expect I am going to have to declare to the ethics commissioner given all the new interest in graft," Rathgeber joked.

The Blue Jays are unlikely to come calling for Rathgeber, but he stays on top of the play while interjecting the odd bit of colour.

Patrick Cassidy, one of the team's managing partners, said knowing Rathgeber's interest, they approached him earlier this year and so far it has worked out.

"He was sounding pretty good," he said. "Not bad for a government man."

After a whirlwind few days following his Wednesday night resignation, Rathgeber said he looks forward to returning to Parliament Hill and being able to speak for his constituents.

"I feel good about it. I feel liberated."

He said the Conservatives have to return to their principles and remember what brought them to power in the first place.

"I genuinely hope the party does turn this around, because they have been off course for a while and Canadians will suffer."

Body found. Woman killed while washing quad in the Smoky River

A 32-year-old woman who worked at Grande Prairie Regional College was killed this weekend while attempting to wash a quad in the Smoky River.

The body of Sarah Lamoureux was located on Saturday afternoon approximately 16 kilometres from where the quad she was on went into Smoky River.

On Friday evening Lamoureux and "a male companion" were attempting to wash a quad when it was pulled into the river along with both the driver and passenger, according to Grande Prairie RCMP. The 26-year-old man was able to get to shore and was treated for hypothermia.

The Grovendale Fire Department, Grande Prairie Technical Search and Rescue and RCMP Air Services Helicopter assisted with the search.

Tran was watching the Kokopelli Choir perform for Winspearation 2013 on Sunday to celebrate the Winspear's 15th season of operation and the city of Edmonton's love for music.

As a first-time visitor, Tran said he was captivated the entire time he was there.

"I went on the tour and was completely amazed by the Davis," Tran said of the facility's 6,551-pipe organ. "I think I'll have to bring my kids here in the future; the music was amazing."

Event organizers wanted to give visitors an inside look at the concert hall's goings-on with free all-day live performances and tours.

"We're trying to further recapture the community's imagination," said Jeffory Magson, volunteer coordinator of the Winspear Centre. "It's just amazing to see how much people enjoy what's going on in the building."

From Tran's experience on Sunday, he said he wants to go to concerts at the Winspear in the coming season.

"I'm going to make my whole family come," he said with a laugh.

Journalism. U.S. state snooping prompts debate on source protection

A scandal over state snooping on journalists in the United States is prompting media-watchers to consider new techniques to protect sources.

Anonymity of sources is considered sacrosanct among journalists and essential to their safety, reputation, and ability to act as public whistle-blowers.

But journalists are lagging behind when it comes to protecting sources in the digital era, critics say.

"There is a general lack of awareness (among journalists) about what ubiquitous surveillance looks like," said Jonathan Stray, who teaches at Columbia University. Everything from the websites you visit, the calls you make, and even your phone location are logged somewhere, Stray said. The same applies to reporters. Whistle-blowers are at particular risk. ### Defence survey to shed light on silent crime

Results of an anonymous survey to be released in the fall by National Defence will shed more light on the extent of military sexual assault, including what has been called the silent crime of male-on-male rape.

Almost 68,000 troops, 86 per cent of them men, were asked last year to voluntarily complete the Canadian Forces Workplace Harassment Survey. It asks their gender, years of service and rank, along with 100 questions ranging from personal harassment to whether they've been raped. It's the first such survey since 1998. Results could provide valuable insight into the extent of sexual violence in the Canadian military — an issue that former soldiers and others say is rarely reported. The extent to which men are sexually assaulted by other men is even more cloaked in silence, they say.

Nelson Mandela received visits from family members on Sunday at a hospital where the former president and anti-apartheid leader was being treated for a recurring lung infection, while South Africans expressed their appreciation for a man widely regarded as the father of the nation.

There was no official update on 94-year-old Mandela after his second night in the hospital. His condition was described as "serious but stable" on Saturday.

Canada celebrates decade of same-sex marriage

Ten years ago, their unprecedented wedding stood for hope, equality and inclusion.

A decade later, Michael Leshner and Michael Stark — Canada's first legally married same-sex couple — believe the battle to have their union recognized by the courts has made it easier for today's lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender Canadians to feel accepted.

"Once you have marriage you have full equality. That was won that day," said Leshner.

The pair's quick civil ceremony in Toronto came just hours after Ontario's Court of Appeal pronounced the Canadian law on traditional marriage unconstitutional on June 10, 2003.

While Ontario was the first to legally recognize same-sex marriage, many other provinces followed soon after. Two years later, the federal government legalized same-sex marriage countrywide with the gender-neutral Civil Marriage Act. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tens of thousands pack into Taksim Square; thousands more flood Ankara's central square

In a series of increasingly beligerent speeches to cheering supporters Sunday, Turkey's prime minister launched a verbal attack on the tens of thousands of anti-government protesters who flooded the streets for a 10th day, accusing them of creating an environment of terror.

Recep Tayyip Erdogan made the most inflammatory of his speeches as he arrived in the capital, Ankara. Erdogan belittled the protesters, again calling them "capulcu," the Turkish word for loot-ers or vandals. He made his speech in Ankara on an open-top bus, which then drove into the city in a motorcade.

Anti-government protesters have turned Erdogan's label of them as "capulcu" into mocking slogans, printing stickers with the word, scrawling it on their tents and uploading music videos onto social-network sites.

Flexible firms let employees buy, sell vacation days

Want more time off work to hang out at the beach? Need a little cash and have vacation days to spare?

Some U.S. companies are allowing their workers to buy and sell vacation time, a perk that gives workers more flexibility in managing their time off.

The novel approach might help employees buy some extra days off to take the trip of a lifetime or spend more time with a newborn. Co-workers could sell off unused days to get some extra money.

Now she and a union representing her fellow cocktail waitresses at the U.S.'s largest casino are fighting for the servers to wear shoes of their own choosing.

iRadio music service, iOS update expected at Apple conference

San Francisco. New look for iPhones, iPads could be most radical design change to mobile software since 2007

iRadio

- Observers think Apple will debut a music-streaming service dubbed iRadio, and that it will be most similar to Pandora, an advertising-supported service that plays songs at random within certain genres for free.
- However, the Apple service is expected to feature a seamless way for listeners to purchase songs through iTunes.

Apple is expected to reveal a digital radio service and changes to the software behind iPhones and iPads on Monday as the company opens its annual conference for software developers.

Apple hasn't said what it will unveil at the Worldwide Developers Conference in San Francisco. But the major announcements are expected during Monday's keynote presentation. Last year, Apple used the conference to announce its own mapping service, better integration with social networks and improvements to virtual assistant Siri. It also announced thinner MacBooks with high-resolution screens. The conference runs through Friday.

This year, Apple is expected to show off a simplified look on iPhones and iPads. If the speculation is correct, it would be the most radical design change since the iPhone made its debut in 2007, showing consumers that phones could do much more than make calls and exchange messages.

This week's event comes at an important time for Apple. The company's stock price has fallen amid concerns that another breakthrough product isn't imminent. Although CEO Tim Cook has said people shouldn't expect new products until the fall, Apple is likely to preview how future products will function in its unveiling of new services and features.

Monday's highlight is expected to be an updated version of iOS, the software that runs iPhones, iPads and iPod Touches. It will be called iOS 7 and will come with new devices expected to go on sale this fall. Owners of recent models such as last fall's iPhone 5 will likely be eligible for free upgrades.

Federal agency stops investigating deadly anthrax

Canada's food regulator is no longer getting involved in cases of anthrax, a disease that can kill cattle, bison, other grazing animals and, in rare cases, people.

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency says it will no longer investigate and quarantine anthrax-infected farms, collect samples for testing, vaccinate livestock or oversee and help pay for the cost of disposing animals that die of the disease.

New rules that went into effect this spring say livestock producers, with the help of private veterinarians, are expected to take responsibility for preventing and dealing with anthrax.

Anthrax is caused by naturally occurring bacteria in spores in soil. The spores can become active during hot weather that follows heavy rains or flooding. Animals that ingest the spores can get sick and die very quickly. If the animal carcass isn't disposed of properly, more spores end up in the soil.

Swedish train driver Martin Akersten poses wearing a skirt in Stockholm on May 31. Akersten says he and more than a dozen other drivers and conductors in the Swedish capital have started wearing skirts in the summer as a protest against train company Arriva's uniform policy, which doesn't allow shorts. An Arriva spokesman says the company wants its staff to look "nice and proper," but can't stop men from wearing "women's clothes" if that's what they want because it would be discrimination. # FOLLOW THE CAMPAIGN MONEY

Normally, all the candidates for the next civic election would have come out of the woodwork by now. Why they haven't is anyone's guess.

But maybe they are still hunched over their keyboards trying to come up with ideas for their election platforms.

One of the things that I would like to see is for every candidate to commit to posting online all the donations they receive, both in-kind and monetary, during the campaign rather than afterward.

Doing so would allow people to see just who is supporting a particular candidate.

It might be nice to know if a candidate is receiving help from developers, unions, business people or just folks.

That kind of information might be a good predictor of where candidates are likely to focus their efforts while on council and make deciding whether or not to vote for them a little easier.

URBAN COMPASS
Terence Harding

The turnout in civic elections has been abysmal in the past decade or so. As a result, there has been much talk about how better to engage potential voters.

Right now there's a much greater turnout among property owners than renters. That's not surprising since it's only property owners who see a tax bill from the city.

Renters should be able to go online and find out how much of their rent is actually going to the city in taxes.

That kind of information already exists electronically and putting it online shouldn't be that difficult. Access to it might make more renters get out and vote.

I think it would be good for candidates not to succumb to promising what they can't possibly deliver. That's not as easy to do as one might think because you and I often demand that candidates do exactly that. And when they cannot de-

So what is it that you think candidates in the next civic election should be focusing on? What do you want them to commit to when it comes to using your tax dollars? Do you want someone who thinks big and wants to attract major events to the city?

Do you want someone who thinks basic services, police, fire, and road repair, should be their focus? Do you want someone who thinks we can do both?

Or have you given up on civic politics entirely?

Feeding Alberta. Charities banking on collaboration as the way of the future

News worth sharing

Media will always have to report on the tough stuff. But we know that Canada is full of compassionate people, inspiring projects and stories worth celebrating. Here's just one:

Running a food bank is a tough job. Racing against expiration dates and providing not only enough food, but also enough varieties of food to meet basic nutritional needs are just some of the challenges.

It's a breathtaking balancing act, especially for grassroots groups that are often understaffed or unfunded.

"Sometimes food banks, depending on their location in the province, feel as though they are operating in isolation," says Jessi Evanoff, co-ordinator of the Alberta Food Bank Network Association (AFBNA), which recently held a conference in Camrose.

Facing budget cuts and increasing demand, 27 Albertan member banks, including Edmonton's Food Bank, gathered below the white steeple of Bethel Evangelical Lutheran Church to lend each other moral support and to talk shop.

"Collaboration is the future for food banks," says Evanoff, who believes that community partnerships will help AFBNA members weather the economic rough patch, and allow them to offer more holistic services. Find out how you can help your community bank at afbna.ca.

George Stroumboulopoulos' new CNN talk show premiered Sunday night. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strombo brings style to CNN

Network sea change.

New mandate and management has the purveyor of American news looking to branch out into new territory

It's a safe bet that George Stroumboulopoulos will be the first male CNN personality to wear two earrings and a skull ring from a designer who made one for Keith Richards.

Stroumboulopoulos, whose new nighttime talk show premiered Sunday, is more curious than dangerous, though.

The show gets a solid time slot for its debut, airing after the season finale of Anthony Bourdain's successful Parts Unknown. Then it will settle into a regular spot on Fridays at 11 p.m. Eastern for the summer and, if things go well, maybe beyond.

This is part of CNN's attempt to branch out beyond news programming at certain times, represented most prominently by Bourdain's show. The effort started before the arrival of new network boss Jeff Zucker — Stroumboulopoulos had his first contact with the network last summer before Zucker arrived — but the enthusiasm continued with the change in management.

Stroumboulopoulos already hosts a nightly talk show on the CBC, where his friendly style seems to encourage celebrities to open up.

"I hope that people pick up something new about the person I'm interviewing and find out a way to relate to them," he said. "I want them to find a connection."

For CNN, the show represents an old style for a new generation. Stroumboulopouos, 40, said his interest in politics was fuelled less by politicians than by listening to the Clash and Public Enemy. He's eager to interview Snoop Lion, the former Snoop Dogg, on his show because he considers him such an important figure in hip-hop.

Rap artist Wiz Khalifa, comic Martin Short and actor Keanu Reeves were the guests on his first show.

Other confirmed interviews for the show's 10-week run include Betty White, Bill Maher, Sharon Stone and filmmaker Werner Herzog.

The show will tape before a studio audience in Los Angeles. Stroumboulopoulos said he's not gunning for the job of CNN's other general interview program, Piers Morgan, and said he likes the way Morgan conducts interviews.

For the moment, he'll fit the CNN show in with a schedule that includes the CBC show (which airs twice in the evening) and a weekly music and talk program he does for a CBS radio station.

"This is what I do," he said. "I don't even have any dependents in my life. I don't even have a plant."

Let's go ride a bike

Welcoming your kids to the wheel world

YummyMummyClub.ca CEO and avid Cadbury Bicycle Factory supporter Erica Ehm speaks to the unexpected education one can acquire on a bicycle.

What can young ones learn from getting on a bicycle for the first time this summer?

The first bike ride is a real bonding moment between parent and child. It's really their first big opportunity for independence. It's a very special moment. It can be tough for them at first — but it teaches persistence and fitness. It's a very important message to instill in your kids, that it's important to go out and play. METRO

In Africa, bicycles have a profound impact on students' lives. A bike can cut travel time to school by up to four hours a day.

- The Cadbury Bicycle Factory is an initiative that has built more than 18,000 bicycles to help students in Africa get to school every day.

- By playing a free online game, kids can prompt

Cadbury to continue to donate the individual parts that will make up a full bicycle for a student in need.

Want to be healthier? Juggle a family and a full-time job

New study. Our expert weighs in on a report claiming moms who work outside the home enjoy better mental and physical health

IT'S ALL RELATIVE
Kathy Buckworth,
kathybuckworth.com

A recent survey found women who worked full time outside the home after having children had better mental and physical health by age 40 than those who had not.

This has of course raised interest, as one might assume that working full time while managing a family would be more stressful, and stress is a known factor in contributing to mental and physical challenges.

It would appear that this isn't necessarily accurate. Why would this be?

Personally, I'm not entirely surprised by the findings. I think Albert Einstein had stay-at-home moms in mind when he defined the word "insanity" as "doing the same thing over

Women who have kids and work full time have been found to have better mental and physical health by 40. ISTOCK and over again and expecting different results."

Have you ever been at home with young children? Have you tried to get them to clean up their rooms, pee into the toilet or stop hitting their sister?

No matter how many times they are told (clearly it is not "nagging" when it is simply giving them excellent advice), the outcome is often the same.

Nothing changes. At least not immediately, and not without years of bribing and threats.

Add to that the fact that my research (I drove around a bit) shows that there isn't a big list moms can carpool to at the end of the day in order to check off: a) continued successfully raising child, b) ensured food was edible and in good portion size and c) minimum health standards were met.

Many moms at home just don't get to feel that sense of accomplishment that comes with actually moving something forward and affecting change. Not in the short term, at any rate, and one of the most distressing things a parent of young children can hear from parents of older children is that it "never gets easy."

There's no such thing as a performance review when you're on the home front: except for the ones you get from snarly teenage girls who aren't necessarily focusing on your positive attributes, as the ones in a professional work environment might. Unless, "You suck" is now a good thing in the way that "that's so sick" has become. (I do try.)

The reward system for moms at home also leaves something to be desired. In that there really isn't one, except for the playground high fives you exchange with a friend when your kid wasn't the one kicking someone else off the slide.

Compare this to the workplace, where most employees can expect to be treated with a modicum of respect, have performance reviews which don't include door slamming (to be fair, there aren't any doors in most cubicles), and best of all, they get to take on new responsibilities with the positive achievement of old ones.

Being relieved at duties you've perfected is something moms at home never get to experience. Until the kids are the ones to leave home, that is. KATHY'S NEW BOOK I AM SO THE BOSS OF YOU: AN 8 STEP GUIDE TO GIVING YOUR FAMILY THE BUSINESS IS AVAILABLE AT BOOKSTORES EVERYWHERE. ## Preventing unplanned pregnancy at any age

LINDA CLARKE

Metro World News in New York

There are around three million unplanned pregnancies every year in the U.S., and though it's an issue often associated with teenagers, a proportion of women this happens to are older, and some are married.

So, Dr. Hilda Hutcherson, a Columbia University Medical Center professor of clinical Obstetrics and Gynecology, gives us a refresher course on our options for making sure a baby doesn't catch us by surprise.

Birth control pills

You can still take them well past your teen years, Hutcherson says. "It's a safe option for women of all ages. Initially, when it was first passed, it was recommended for women until age 30, then it was age 35, but now most women can safely use it right into their 40s until they reach menopause."

Condoms

"Condoms work great if people use them consistently and right from the beginning of intercourse. The female condom is wonderful. I thought it was going to be popular, but it's large and makes slurping noises during sex. The newer ones are less noisy, but it's not caught on."

IUDs

They're convenient and have undergone major improvements, Hutcherson says. "Women stopped using IUDs because of infections, which caused infertility. But modern ones are smaller and improved. Even young women who haven't had children can use them."

The morning-after-pill

"This should only be used in emergencies and not relied on as a form of contraception," Hutcherson says.

The parties, the pictures, and now, a profession? How to get your game face on after graduation

For post-secondary graduates receiving degrees and diplomas in the weeks ahead, excitement over completing their programs may be tempered by the grim job landscape for Canada's young people.

The latest labour force survey from Statistics Canada revealed a decline of 19,000 jobs for youth aged 15 to 24 in April. The youth unemployment rate was at 14.5 per cent last month, little changed compared to a year earlier and more than double the national average. "When you see numbers like that, it can often give you the impression there really aren't many jobs available in your area," said Shirin Khamisa, a Toronto-based career counselor and founder of Careers by Design.

"Be very realistic and realize there is a general climate where there are less jobs, but that doesn't mean you won't be able to secure a job that's right for you."

Khamisa and other experts share two ways for job-seeking grads to distinguish themselves in a competitive job market and work toward kick-starting their careers.

Build a network

Do you have any professional contacts in your area of study or field of expertise? If not, there's no time like the present to start making connections. Attending industry events, joining a professional umbrella organization or engaging with individuals working in the field to ask about key needs in their area — and how you can fill them — could help build your network, said Khamisa.

"That's the really powerful thing in a job search when it's a tighter market — to get that face time with people who are in the field you'd like to work in."

Another good way to obtain information and build a network is through informal interviews, said Bruno Castilloux, manager of career services at the University of Ottawa.

Graduating can be exciting ... and a little nerve-racking. Looking for job leads? Try networking with industry professionals. ISTOCK

He suggested researching the company of interest to craft precise questions before calling to speak briefly with a representative to learn more.

Keep connected

While many people will be keen to "jump right into job-search mode," Khamisa said that's not the best way to start a relationship with a potential contact. Khamisa said the job search should be a time of exploration. It's often easier when individuals are initially seeking out information and learning about a particular industry and the needs of an organization before hunting for a specific position, she noted. "Reaching out and connecting takes courage ... and I guarantee you there will be times where people don't get back to you or are just too busy or aren't receptive," she said.

"But the magic happens when you persevere and you keep going. And eventually, you will connect with a group of people who will help you and support you as you move forward." Khamisa added she once had a client who developed 10 contacts through cold calling. She continued to keep in touch over several months and ended up getting three different job offers. Placing a phone call isn't just limited to maintaining professional contacts.

When individuals reach the stage where they're submitting applications, a followup call is another way to show initiative, said Danielle Bragge, a partner with The Headhunters, a Canadian recruitment firm.

Jays fall apart in finale vs. Rangers

Adrian Beltre hit a tiebreaking homer in the seventh inning and David Murphy added another solo shot an inning later as the Texas Rangers defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4 on Sunday afternoon at Rogers Centre.

After spotting the Blue Jays an early four-run lead, Texas (37-25) scored six unanswered runs to salvage the finale of the three-game series and end Toronto's three-game winning streak. Reliever Neal Cotts (2-0) worked one inning for the win and Joe Nathan recorded his 19th save.

Heat overpower Spurs in a blowout

NBA Finals. Miami draws even with strong performance by its supporting cast

Game 2

Heat

Spurs

Back with a blowout, and no, the Miami Heat didn't need LeBron James to do more.

Not when Mario Chalmers and everyone else did everything right.

Chalmers led the charge, James broke out to finish it with a flurry and the Heat used a 33-5 run to blow away the San Antonio Spurs 103-84 on Sunday night to even the NBA Finals at one game apiece.

James missed 10 of his first 13 shots and the Heat trailed by a point late in the third quarter before unleashing the lethal brand of basketball that led them to a franchise-record 66 wins this season.

Chalmers finished with 19 points, and James had 17 points, eight rebounds and seven assists while shooting only 7-for-17 from the field.

"I know my shooters only need a little bit of room to get the shot off," James said. "For me, I struggled offensively, but the shooters made some good shots."

The Heat made 10 of 19 3-pointers and got 13 points from Ray Allen, and 12 points and 10 rebounds from the previously slumping Chris Bosh.

Danny Green made all six shots, including five 3-pointers, and scored 17 points for the Spurs. They host Game 3 on Tuesday night.

Tony Parker had 13 points on 5-for-14 shooting for the Spurs, who were so precise in their 92-88 victory in Game 1 but threw the ball all over the white-surrounded court Sunday, committing 17 turnovers that led to 19 Miami points.

Tim Duncan made just three of 13 shot attempts and finished with nine points and 11 rebounds.

The Spurs had only four turnovers in Game 1, tying an NBA Finals record low. But they surpassed that total in the first quarter, Parker committing two of their five.

Vettel finally gets Montreal checkered flag

Sebastian Vettel GETTY IMAGES

Sebastian Vettel wasn't losing any sleep over never having won the Canadian Grand Prix, but when he finally did it, he did it in style.

The triple world champion for the Red Bull team pulled out to a comfortable lead from pole position and was never threatened as he added the Canadian GP to his list of 29 career Formula One wins on Sunday afternoon.

The German, who has a commanding 36-point lead in drivers standings, took the checkered flag 14.4 seconds ahead of Ferrari ace Fernando Alonso, his closer pursuer on the track and in the standings.

"It is important to us, but I wasn't desperate to win here," Vettel said. "I think we had strong results in the past.

"It wasn't a shame coming in here not having won this race, so I wasn't desperate when I got up this morning, thinking 'I have to win, I have to win.' But I was very pleased because it's a very nice race."

Vettel raced nicely himself, winning for the third time this season.

He held off Lewis Hamilton's Mercedes on the first turn from the start and pulled away. He led virtually the entire race, and had only one mishap on the 52nd of 70 laps when he cut across the grass after going into a chicane too quickly.

Tragedy strikes Canadian Grand Prix

A race-track worker at the Canadian Grand Prix was killed Sunday after he slipped under the wheel of a crane at the end of the Formula One event.

Officials said the man was escorting the crane as it moved Esteban Gutierrez's car, which did not finish the Montreal race.

The accident occurred shortly after the checkered flag waved to signal the end of the race.

"The recovery vehicle had lifted the car to return it to the pits, and while doing this, the worker dropped his radio and attempted to pick it up," Matteo Bonciani, F1's head spokesman, said as he read a statement to reporters.

"As he did this, he stumbled and was hit and run over by the recovery vehicle."

Officials would not immediately release the identity of the victim, but said he was a member of the Automobile Club de l'Île Notre Dame.

Hospital officials said in a statement that he was a volunteer at the track.

Johnson and everyone else at Pocono Raceway

Jimmie Johnson absolutely dominated Sunday at Pocono Raceway for his third victory of the season.

The Sprint Cup points leader, Johnson pulled away on both of the last two restarts over the final 10 laps to pull into Victory Lane at Pocono for the first time since he swept both races in 2004.

Johnson also won the Daytona 500 and at Martinsville Speedway this season. He led 128 of 160 laps for his 63rd career cup win and was never challenged a week after his run at a possible win at Dover International Speedway was taken away by a penalty off a restart.

Greg Biffle was second and Dale Earnhardt Jr., Johnson's teammate, was third. Dover winner Tony Stewart was fourth, followed by fellow Stewart-Haas Racing driver Ryan Newman.

"I really didn't have anything for Jimmie," Biffle said. "Jimmie was in a league of his own." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL playoffs. Bruins and Blackhawks made short work of their opponents in conference finals

Two franchises, rich in history, talent and star power. Two winning teams that know what it takes to bring home the Stanley Cup. Intrigue, in the form of a schedule that kept them away from each other for an entire season.

Oh, there's plenty to love about this series.

The Stanley Cup final kicks off Wednesday night when the Chicago Blackhawks host the Boston Bruins in the first finals matchup of Original Six franchises since Montreal beat the New York Rangers in five games way back in 1979.

The mighty Blackhawks, winners of seven of their last eight games, have a deep roster that really found its identity when pushed to the limit by the Detroit Red Wings in the second round. Then there are the playoff-tested Bruins, who rolled over favoured Pittsburgh during an impressive sweep that gave them a chance for a second NHL title in three seasons.

It's gift-wrapped in a bow for a league still trying to recover from a bitter lockout that wiped out 510 games and pushed the start of the season back to Jan. 19.

"It's a special couple places, the tradition of the Bruins and the Hawks is special," Blackhawks coach Joel Quenneville said. "I'm sure, you know, the rivalry could return instantly come Game 1. I think it's good for the league. It's good

Unfamiliar foes

Due to the lockout, there were no interconference games this regular season.

- The Bruins and Blackhawks haven't played each other since Oct. 15, 2011, when Boston won 3-2 in a shootout in Chicago.

for hockey. Two great hockey markets. We're very excited to be a part of it."

Chicago advanced with a 4-3 double-overtime victory over Los Angeles on Saturday night, using a hat trick from Patrick Kane to eliminate the defending champion Kings in five games in the Western Conference final. Back in the Stanley Cup series for the first time since 2010, the Blackhawks are in search of another title to pair with their six-game victory over the Philadelphia Flyers three years ago.

"Everyone has that drive to win the cup," Chicago forward Andrew Shaw said. "It's going to be a long road ahead here. It's surreal. I've wanted this since I was a kid. I'm excited to get started."

Boston is rolling again after losing its spot atop the Northeast Division in the final days of the regular season. The Bruins have won five in a row and nine of 10, boosted by a familiar group of stars who led the way when they won it all in 2011. David Krejci scored four times in the Pittsburgh sweep and leads Boston with nine goals and 12 assists in the playoffs.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Try to realize that not everyone thinks or feels the same way as you. A clash of viewpoints is likely today but it will only be a problem if you insist that you are right and others are wrong.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You may prefer to stick with what you know and trust today rather than take a risk on something new. That's up to you, of course, but it's also a shame because a little bit of courage could change your life completely.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Keep telling yourself that the changes now taking place are not nearly as bad as some people claim. As a matter of fact they could actually be beneficial, for you anyway, so make sure you have a positive attitude.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You are not as conformist as some people think and what you do over the next few days will prove that fact several times over. Expect a bit of a backlash though.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Try not to give too much away today, especially on the work front where knowledge is most definitely power. The less others know about what you are up to the more likely it is your efforts will be a success.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

For some reason you are a bit more aggressive than usual, which could lead to confrontations at home and at work.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

It's time to get serious about your long-term aims and that means, inevitably, getting rid of certain short-term aims that eat up your time and your energy.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

The planets will smooth your path as the new week begins and you will find it quite easy to get your way both in the professional sphere and in your private affairs.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Try not to let little things annoy you today because if your temper gets the better of you there is no telling where it might lead. Whatever other people might say or do treat it all as a big joke.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

If a commitment of some sort is not working out then maybe you should cut your losses and get out. It won't be easy but let common sense (and the contents of your wallet) guide you.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Some things can be put off indefinitely because they are not really important but you have been putting off something that MUST be forced through to a conclusion. Make this the week when you finally crack it.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Yes, all things are possible but don't get silly and change things for the sake of it today — chances are you will just have to change them back again later. SALLY BROMPTON
